Montclair Academy Announces New Student Ambassadors

DENVER — Oct. 15, 2007 — Montclair Academy, a co-educational preschool to eighth grade independent school in Denver, today announced the appointment of fourteen sixth, seventh, and eighth graders as Student Ambassadors to the Denver community. The students will be responsible for giving tours of the campus to prospective parents, speaking publicly to groups interested in the school, and for leading community outreach projects such as the Halloween parade to the Village at Lowry retirement community on October 30.

“We are very pleased about the high level of volunteerism that exists among students and parents at Montclair,” said Tony Sherer, the headmaster of Montclair Academy. “The strong commitment made to expanding the school and supporting its programs has been a wonderful experience. This new outreach program will provide a valuable learning experience for our talented students.”

The Student Ambassadors were nominated by the faculty and have stepped up to their responsibilities with typical enthusiasm and courage. Student Ambassadors are trained through Montclair’s comprehensive Public Speaking program and show remarkable poise in front of audiences. About Montclair Academy

Montclair Academy is a co-educational preschool to eighth grade independent school located in the heart of the Lowry historic district in Denver. The school is designed around a Global Citizenship curriculum that prepares children for High School and beyond through modern language instruction, broad cultural and environmental studies, and a range of international literature. Montclair believes that an early and thorough orientation to a planet made smaller by technology, commerce, and global political issues will train children best for the world they will inevitably inherit. Montclair graduates attend the best private and public school programs with strong academic and social success. For additional information, visit www.montclairacademy.org.
